

I am concerned about the possibility of allowing passengers to use their cell phones inflight. During one of my flights on a 757 Boeing we experienced a slight roll and immediately the captain directed us to have every passenger present his/her cell phone and insure that it was off. Two were found on and the captain theorized that they had interfered with the automatic pilot. This represents a danger, not to mention an annoyance to other passengers. Already passengers complain about other passengers merely talking to each other face to face. Please consider leaving the policy on cell phone use as it stands.
